Harvard to Borrow Tiger Shell.

Cambridge, Mass., April 10.—Harvard carsmen learned today it would not be necessary to carry their sectional shell with them for races with Princeton at Carnegle lake, N. J., April 27. Original plans for the visiting crews to borrow shells were abandoned because the Princeton boats were rigged for a starboard stroke, while Harvard's stroke oars were on the port side. It has been decide, however, that the rigging can be changed for the benefit of the Harvard crews.

CHANGE IN MAJOR LEAGUE CONTRACTS

Contracts Will Probably Call For Seven Months of Work by Ball Player Instead of Six-Change Has Been Brought About by Herzog-Braves Controversy-Exceptions Made In Case of Youngsters and Minor Leaguers-Peanut Boys to Sell Thrift Stamps at Ball Parks This Summer If Recommendations of National War Savings Committee Are Followed.

Under the present ruses of baseball, a major league player's contract covers a period of six months, from April 15 to October 15, with salary payments twice a month. When a player is ordered to report, at the training camp about the middle of March his expenses are paid but he draws no money for his services until the championship season begins. These conditions have been entirely satisfactory to a large majority of the players, but radical changes are inevitable as a result of the row over Charles Lincoln Herzog.

A contract for seven months, beginning March 15, is the remedy. Both major leagues probably will adopt it before another winter rolls around. This contract must be signed by all players that hold over from one season to another, with minor leagues and youngsters who may be taken on trial excepted. When this reform has been instituted all players under reserve must report for duty on March 15 or forfeit a part of their salaries until such time as they appear at the training camps. The players may not relish this new state of affairs, but they will have to put the blame on Herzog, whose factics have aroused the major league magnates in such a manner that drastic action is inevitable.

Glants his salary would be $3,000 less. Herzog has been supplanted by Fletcher ac acaptsin of the Glants, and, therefore would lose at least $500 ex tra for performing these duties. Furthermore. Herzog is sensible enough to realize that his resturn to the Glants and thermore. Herzog is sensible enough to realize that his resturn to the Glants and friction; that McGraw, in view of many things that Herzog has been supplanted by Fletcher ac acaptsin of the Glants, and, therefore would lose at least $500 ex tra for performing these duties. Furthermore. Herzog is sensible enough to realize that his return to the Glants would mean all kinds of ill feeling and friction; that McGraw, in view of many things that Herzog has said since last full, probably would keep him on pins and needles if not on the bench. Herzog has placed hims in such a manner that drastic action is inevitable. Herzog is bound by a contract for $10,000 to either the Giants or the Braves, a point that may be put up to Braves, a point that may be put up to the National League's directors and President Tener unless a compromise is reached before next Tuesday. He was traded to the Braves in good faith and at his own request last Decimber in exchange for Doyle and Earnes. Yet owning to the fact that he cannot arrange a new agreement with the owners of the Braves Herzog has refused to play ball, even though the Braves are sadly without him.

The point raised by major league men, who regret this unpleasant controversy is that if Herzog's contract covered a period of seven months instead of six he would not be willing to lose some of his $10 000 salary by throwing up hurdles with which to block the deal. Herzog can safely hold out until April 16 without forfeiting a dollar. Meanwhile he is charged with injuring the prestice of the Boston club by declining to take part in the Braves' practice games with the Yankees, who won six straights last week.

Herzog now declares that he will report to the Giants at the Polo Grounds next week and thereby will compel McGraw to return Doyle and Barnes to the Braves. Herzog can draw $13,000 from the Boston club this year upder certain conditions, whereas if he should play with the im. The point raised by major league
